To: Dave Bartus/R10/USEPA/US@EPA,

Today at the PMT Deborah gave her roundtable and made a point in convincing the audience that well placement for LLBG was in better hands with Ecology. She used all the same arguments; water flow, liner, small spaces, worker safety you said last week and said that DOE is happy to put the wells in at the "point where sample results will be less meaningful"-point of compliance. She said that you said you were done discussing and it would go to Jane and Rick now. Deborah said that Jeff was looking into some things on your need for more down gradient.

NRWLD she said that "we" have decided that characterization is good enough and that DOE provided documents to Asopuru and he was going to review and determined that Ecology (not just DOE) believes characterization is good and here is why we are saying that. She said something about the GW Plan being almost complete. Did not mention anything about SWOC units.
